MERIDIAN'S SYSTEM OF GOVERNMENT

Two weeks ago in the DIXIE Roto Magazine section of the Times-Picayune appeared an article on Mississippi's second largest city—Meridian. Most interesting part of this article was that part dealing with the City's council-city manager type of government.

"Since World War II," says the writer, "some 100 cities have installed the system bringing the national total above 900."

"This is the general idea: To obtain maximum efficiency as devoid of political pressure as possible the city is run like a large corporation. The council members act as the board of directors. The city manager, key figure of the operation, assumes the duties of a general manager. It is his job to boss the entire staff of city employees, carry out the orders of the council and make recommendations as to what he thinks should be done."

Sounds like a mighty good form of government. The City of Grenada, Mississippi, has followed in Meridian's footsteps. The fact that under the council-city manager type of government "the city is run like a large corporation" is alone enough to make us do some serious thinking. In our own community there is so much that could be done, so many small improvements that could be made. Would not a more representative system of government in the form of additional council members (all with very small pay) enable us to go forward at the rate other communities seem to be going? As was said before, it's time for us to do some serious thinking.

As in the case of the City of Meridian, the city manager need not be a local man, (bound by political obligations) but a stranger, totally disinterested in anything save doing his job to the best interests of the community. A man who has proven himself in his own community and who would be willing to accept the task of operating a city like our own.

Trifles & Treasures

BY FRANK ROOTS

Everybody is making resolutions these days, but as the two are alike, Jun. Farley stopped off at Post in New York, last night from Europe, with the assertion that we Americans talk war and fear war much more than Europeans do. Coincidentally, however, Mrs. Earl Browder, L.V.V. representative, made the same statement in an address given at a banquet at the HWYC last week.

"I have," began Mrs. Browder, "I doubt that there will be a war in the near future because I formed the opinion long ago that Stalin is very, very smart."

"He had a brilliant teacher, Lenin, who said in 1924," Mrs. Browder said, "that the U.S. to speed itself into destruction." Stalin heard and has never forgotten."

The President and chiefs of staff, trying to rush their astronomical appropriations bills through Congress, tells us that war is right around the corner.

Barton continues: "We, too, had great teachers. But, unlike Stalin we do not listen."

Washington warned us solemnly to keep out of foreign wars. Our internationalists now tell us that he didn't mean that. What he meant was that we should "fight aggression all over the world."

Jefferson said, "The government is best which governs least." Our present leaders say this main idea may have been all right in a primitive society, but in the complex present the taxpayer, according to Harry Hopkins, is just "too dumb" to run his own business or order his own life.

Listed below are some of the recent headlines printed in prominent newspapers: "Snyder resumes deficit financing." "School's Poverty Held US Danger." "Prices at History's Highest Point." (Food costs 13.8% more than in 1950.) "New York's Next Year's Budget to be 100 Million Higher."

"And," finishes Barton: "When you get the bad news of a creaking and cracking national economy, when you read that a big Kansas packing house, washed out by floods, announces that it will collect its insurance money and quit because there is no more hope of making a profit, when you look at your tax bill and your bank account and can't see any daylight—when all this happens, that is just what Stalin wants. So, why should he start a war?"

While you're looking the situation over, take a look at the smiling face of Harry—and instead of making predictions, formulate prayers.

store lures Monday night shoppers to a night club-style floor, may include a hot jazz band and skitful hula dancers.

Most merchants agree that Monday night shopping is a new phenomenon because families like to shop together. I think the new trend has a lot to do with the fact that many stores have their doors open at least one week.

Speaking of stores—I think the Maroon in Dallas was the first appointment to me of any store I visited. Prices are fabulous and decor is not in keeping with N-M's sales tags or fashions.

In fact, there just wasn't any.

I would say that Navy Day in Pensacola, Florida is the most complete in that you can get a ration filled (if you wish) by series, pastry, refrigerator, a new hat, notions and kitchen. Get your hair shampooed and a "lift" (if you wish) in the eat your lunch and go home.

For window decorations I do see stores in Houston and San Francisco (Those in New Orleans are a hint). The window decorations usually concentrate on the theme and leave the rest to the combinations and appointments of the passer-by.

Wise or otherwise: The woman boasts of the silver...

Shopping nights are replacing shopping days and revolutionizing the buying habits of Americans from coast to coast.

Changes caused by this growing trend toward shopping after dark, are graphically illustrated in a survey of 18 retail stores.

From Boston to San Francisco from Houston to Detroit, more Americans are spending money in food and department stores after twilight than ever before.

In the 18 cities surveyed Monday is the favorite shopping night for just about everything except groceries. Thursday night runs a close second. Some cities have 'night shopping' two, three, four and even six nights every week.

STATE FAIR WILL REFLECT PROGRESS

Throng Expected For Fair

Where Cream Of Crop Will Show

State's Progress On Parade

Mississippi's progress will be on parade for a week, beginning Oct. 5, when exhibitors from all over the state compete for $25,000 in cash prizes at the annual Mississippi State Fair, which is expected to attract more than 300,000 visitors through the exposition's free gates this year.

A great many changes and improvements in the facilities of the traditional fair, now referred to as the Mississippi Agricultural and Industrial Exposition, will greet this year's visitors.

A new livestock building, completed last year, has been raised five and one-half feet, allowing all low ground in the surrounding areas to be filled in and raised above flood level. The fair auditorium and state's exhibit building has been moved from its old location to a new site near the recently completed State Fair Administration Building.

Practically every building on the fairgrounds has been extensively improved and put in first class condition and by opening day the newly filled and graded grounds will be ready for the influx of exhibitors and visitors.

As usual, there'll be fun for the youngsters and visitors as well, but the growing interest in Mississippi livestock, industry and agriculture is expected to draw greater interest to exhibits than in the past.

Fair officials predict that this year's Exposition will boast the greatest showing of beef cattle ever exhibited in Mississippi, which is rapidly becoming a leader in this agricultural field. Already permanent facilities have been expanded to take care of anticipated interest but the increasing number of entries will necessitate four additional temporary tents. Preliminary arrangements for the fair are well advanced. The fairgrounds are being prepared for the fair, and the fair is expected to be a great success.

Monday, opening day, will be ushered in with a parade and with press contest awards. Tuesday will be set aside for veterans and all veterans service organizations.

Wednesday will be turned over to state, county and municipal government and civic organizations.

Thursday will be official farmers' and livestock day. Friday, children's day, will be turned over to school kids.

Saturday, the final day, will be observed as Mississippi Travelers Day.

Members of the Agricultural and Industrial Commission which is in charge of the fair include: St. Corley, State Commissioner of Agriculture; Clay Lyle, director of State Extension Service; J. M. Dean, secretary, Mississippi Association of Fairs; Frank D. Barlow, Mississippi Livestock Association; H. E. Manfield, director of Vocational Education for the Department of Education; J. Donovan, Mississippi Agricultural and Industrial Board, and R. S. Withers, Jackson City Commissioner.

FORCE DISHES OUT CATERING STYLE

Marion, Ga.—The Air Force is serving up $351,000,000 worth of vital, well-equipped in the cafeteria style to help break the nation's major food bottleneck—machine tools.

Two Air Force generals commented on the operation "is one of our secret weapons."

The observation came from Maj. Gen. El Brandt, deputy chief of staff for general, Washington, and Brig. Gen. H. Johnson, chief, productive resources division, Dayton, Ohio.

About 600 defense contractors have been through the huge warehouses and in Omaha, Neb., in the past weeks on split second schedules, making the distance between the towns of charter plans.

In the process, mountains of the government's normal red tape have been reduced aside to the point where a contractor simply tags a piece of equipment and it is his.

It is more than a claimant, it is a claimant board from Wright-Patterson Field at Dayton picks on the spot contractor with the highest priority.

The tools, some of which require a minimum of three flat cars to transport are pouring out of the huge hangars of the Lockheed bomber plant at Marietta, Ga. The goal is to have 700 a week. The goal is to have 700 a week.

GEN. STRESSES STATE PORT DEVELOPMENT

Greenville, Miss.—Unless the port cities of Mississippi take steps to improve their port facilities, large inroads will be made by cities of other states, such as Mobile, New Orleans and Baton Rouge, Gen. James H. Stratton of the Knapp-Tippett-Abbotts Engineering Company told 21 delegates of Vicksburg, Greenville and Natchez, meeting in Vicksburg this week.

The question of a general port survey of the entire state along the lines of the present Greenville harbor survey was principal topic under discussion at the meeting which had Vicksburg hotel as its headquarters.

Attending from Greenville were Edmund Taylor, president of the Delta Port Association, who presided at the meeting; Joseph McCool of the Greenville Towing Company, and John A. Fox, consulting engineer of the Delta Port Association.

PICAYUNE BUDGET INCREASED $18,000
Board Also Votes to Raise Cemetery Fund

Picayune, Miss.—City clerk A. J. Read reports that the Picayune mayor and board of aldermen have increased the budget $18,000 for the fiscal year, which begins Oct. 1 and ends Sept. 30, 1952. The new budget is set at $180,655.

The board voted to increase the cemetery maintenance fund from $1200 per year to $5000 per year, with a full-time sexton being employed to take care of Palestine cemetery, Antioch cemetery and a cemetery in Bayous Quarters for Negroes.

The board also voted to employ a tax assessor with a salary of $2500 per year.

Increases in salary were voted by the board for the city engineer; city attorney; regular city firemen; all city enforcement officers except the day-man, a position now held by Weston Lott.

'Millionaire For Christy,' At Star Theatre Sunday & Monday, October 7-8

The rollicking story of a breadwinning secretary with a yen for a rich husband, and a playboy radio announcer who inherits two million dollars, "A Millionaire For Christy" at the Star Theatre Sunday and Monday, Oct. 7-8.

With the veteran film favorite Fred MacMurray in the role of the playboy, the comedy introduces lovely Eleanor Parker, an Academy Award candidate this year for her performance in "Caged," in a zany, comedy role that has critics comparing her with the late, beloved Carole Lombard.

For her role in the picture Miss Parker suffered through as grueling an ordeal as has any actress in recent years. She spent one full day in the surf at Santa Monica Beach, while waves broke over her repeatedly, getting just one scene for the film.

For other sequences, she was bound in a home-made strait-jacket, slapped resoundingly by MacMurray and had her arches crushed dancing a spine-snapping rhumba with 230 pound Chris Pin Martin, the veteran Mexican comedian.

As for Fred MacMurray, of course, making comedies is old stuff. A ranking star for 15 years, MacMurray boasts such hit pictures as "The Egg and I," "Family Honeymoon" and "Father Was a Fullback."

Rounding out the cast of "A Millionaire For Christy" are Richard Carlson, whose work in "King Solomon's Mines" was highly received, Una Merkel, Miss Buckley and Douglas Dumbrille.

The reliable George Marshall directed the production for Bert E. Friedlob, whose Thor Productions is releasing the film through Twentieth Century-Fox. The screenplay was written by Ken Englund from a story by Robert Harari.

LIST DRIVING RULES FOR FALL-WINTER SEASON

Cardinal rules of safety which drivers should obey to prevent their joining the ranks of accidental killers during the coming fall and winter months were outlined today by officials of the Mississippi Safety Council in cooperation with the State Highway Safety Patrol and the National Safety Council.

"While these rules are to be heeded at all times," declared A. S. Windham, Executive Director of the Safety Council, "they are especially recommended at this time of the year because of the heavy traffic caused by football games, coupled with the usual hazards of fall and winter driving."

The rules as handed down by the safety official include: The only proper place for alcohol is in the radiator of a car—not in the driver.

Light and sound can safely ignore speed limits—the driver cannot. Obey both posted speed limits and those safe limits imposed by weather or other conditions.

Set an example for the driver behind you to follow. Avoid weaving from lane to lane, passing on the wrong side or at intersections.

Avoid "right-of-way" arguments. The winner of these arguments is the one who remains alive! It's better to yield the right-of-way than to give up your life to prove you're right!

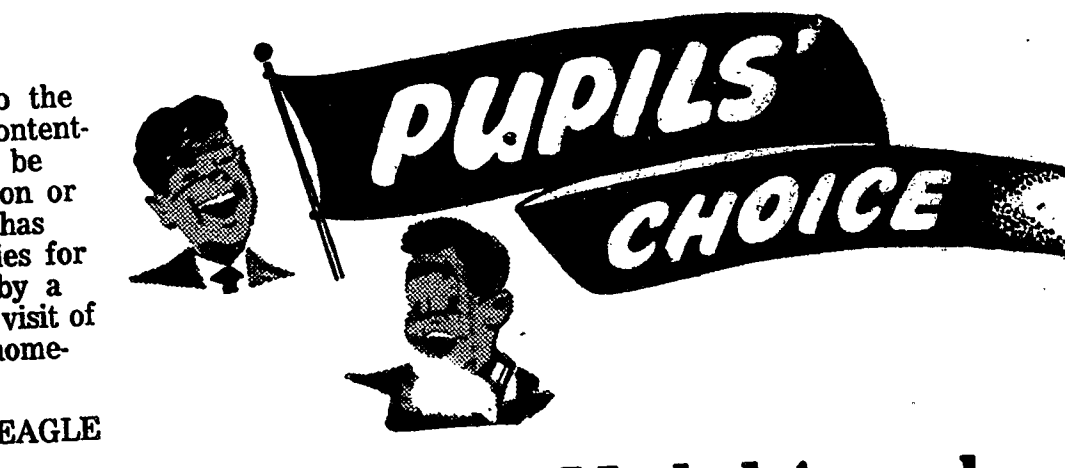

Look for and heed signs, signals and traffic officer's directions, especially at football games or other congested traffic areas.

When you leave your car to become a pedestrian, carry with you the same respect you have for traffic laws as a motorist.

Taking chances on the road is needless, going to or returning from sports events. Don't take these chances! Don't be a "show-off" following the game.

Last, but by no means least important, is the fact that a shiny hood doesn't mean you have a safe car. Extend your care to include all mechanical and electrical equipment. The best breaks in driving come to the motorists who have the best brakes in their cars. Be positive that your car is in first class mechanical condition before undertaking the trip.
